

ABSTRACT

A game usable by a player to make use of either residual game credits or partial game credits is disclosed. New aspects of the game include a fixed wager
5 amount that is convertible with valid voucher from other games in a casino, a fixed win amount per game win event per session (a game session is a plurality of individual game plays), and the game's ability to repeat game play without player intervention. These qualities allow a player to present otherwise unusable or uninteresting game credits to the game of the present invention and then watch as 10 the game first determines the number of individual game plays and then plays an entire game session without any player interaction required.
